

In the name of God, the most gracious, the most merciful

Free Syrian Army

Southern Front

Martyr Ahmed Al-Abdo Forces

Number / 51 /

Date 2016/5/19

1- Tasks of the battalion commander

Tasks of the leadership elements in the battalion

He is directly responsible for the battalion's readiness and the political and psychological state of the fighters.

b. Making appropriate decisions and assigning tasks to subordinates.

Implement all orders and instructions issued by the command of the forces.

Knowing the general situation of the battalion (armament - missions - finances - personnel - mechanisms)

c. Conduct training courses for subordinates.

h Forming reserves of all physical media

Coordination and organization with neighboring factions in the area to work in it

Submit periodic reports to the sector leadership at a rate of one report every 15 days or as requested.

Operations officer duties

Organizing the battalion's combat work based on available information about friend and foe and submitting proposals to the battalion commander in order to make the appropriate decision and participate in it.

B. Supervising the preparation of all documents related to combat operations.

Intelligence (reconnaissance) officer duties

Responsible for collecting reconnaissance and security information through reconnaissance forces and means, assisted by a reconnaissance group numbering approximately 506 members and some informants in the region.

Duties of the administrative officer

Responsible for logistical/administrative support (arming - technical - missions - appointments - fuel - financial - medical)

Support Officer (Supply) Duties

Responsible for the support company, if any, and provides combat fire support to infantry units after coordination with the operations room and his leadership.

Signal officer duties

Responsible for communication readiness between units, organizing communication, ensuring communication between units through signal operations, and forming a signal reserve during combat operations.